Dear Sir/Madam

As I am a resident under Canterbury city council, I feel I must object to the proposal of 2,000 homes at Blean Tyler hill and Rough common.

The proposals put forward say they will be sympathetic to the community and wildlife I beg to differ as Blean is one of the largest ancient woodlands in Southern England and houses much wildlife therefore by building a massive housing development , will most certainly destroy most of the wildlife and wild fauna , by just conserving a few pieces of land here and there will not be of any benefit to wildlife.

In real terms traffic will be a major problem as most people will not use public transport or walk or cycle if any distance from their home therefore creating more congestion on the roads with at least another 2,000 cars entering Canterbury, traffic is bad enough already. More houses more use of water we are already a water stretched area and frequently have hosepipe bans.

All public services are stretched , if you need a GP Dentist or hospital appointments there is usually a long wait. Also have they considered that if anyone is rushed to hospital Canterbury does not have a main hospital and patients have to go to QEQM Margate or William Harvey Ashford and as both these two towns are having massive developments built as well how are they going to cope with influx from thousands of people from Canterbury.

Kind Regards
