I am writing to object to the proposal to develop the land at Brooklands Farm.

- Why are these houses needed? Will one single person who doesn't currently have a home gain a home through this development?
- If new homes are needed for people who don't already have homes, why do they need to be built on farmland? Greenfield sites can never become open countryside again, once they've been built on.
- How can the existing problems (of sewage, drainage, pollution, traffic, flooding, medical services) be resolved when more unneeded houses are added to the already over-heavy burden?
- Why is it considered useful to invite so many more residents into this overcrowded area?

Unless these questions can be satisfactorily answered, there can be no justification for this development. Please take this into account when deciding on the future of the people and land you work so hard for.
