Without doubt this is a most ill considered piece of development. From the perspectives of; just for example:

Sheer Mass This is a TOWN not a development

Waste We frequently exhaust human waste into the sea because there is not the infrastructure to manage it. This will make such releases far more common.

Population Growth This doubles the size of the local population overnight and with no consideration to existing residents.

Lack of infrastructure This does nothing to alleviate the current issues of traffic, healthcare, flooding etc and simply makes a mind blowing addition to stretched community services from the Bins to the Police, NHS etc.

Biodiversity Current legislation for a net 10% increase in biodiversity can not possibly be met by developing large numbers of developer led housing on effectively a Greenfield Site. This makes this development illegal.

Water supply This area of Kent is frequently under Hose Pipe Bans. Up to 6000 new residents can potentially live in this development and there are numerous others being planned along the basic same corridor. When will it stop when you have concreted over the whole of the Garden of England?

This is simply madness in a corporate suit. Profit and statistics do not make a community. The approval of any sort of scheme of this size is morally wrong. I completely object to any Application of this sort of quantity of housing being undertaken.
