I am a young adult living in Chestfield, even now I struggle with managing to be let on public transport as they are at full capacity around school time, I spend time waiting around in traffic due to how already overpopulated Whitstable is, I've been struggling to get a part time job to go alongside school as there are little to NO vacancy's, there is already a challenge for healthcare. I OBJECT your plans for brookland farm. It is ridiculous by adding thousands more houses to the area you are going to be causing severed problems. AN EVEN LARGER increase in traffic, we shouldn't have to waist most of our lives waiting around due to people's greed for money, not only this but there will be a huge increase in pollution thousands more cars will be on our areas roads and they can not handle the demand as it is. Why would I even consider attempting to get the bus as it would be impossible to be let on. We use public transport as encouraged to be better for our environment but what is the point if you are adding a higher population concentration to transport as well as this why attempt to combat helping our planet when you are destroying a green space. Those family's in houses will have children who will need to go to school, and need healthcare.THERE IS NOT ENOUGH RESOURCES AS IT IS . I OBJECT . I WHOLEHEARTEDLY OBJECT. If you also struggle to sell these houses you will bring our house market down, this is not fair on Whitstable existing population that you may drive down force into negative equity. As a [REDACTED] year old im standing for what I believe is right do not build on brooklands farm, there is enough new developments here in Whitstable, hernbay,Canterbury,Faversham,Sittingbourne, it's terrifying to see I don't want to grow up surrounded by a housing Corridor linking one town to the next -thank you
