

I object strongly to the planned Housing estate on Brooklands Farm.

Large areas of Whitstable have already been given over to housing.

We appear to have on-going sewage problems, the traffic is already horrendous.

The loss of the beautiful farm land will be a bitter blow, what is still a comparable rice area will be ruined.

The only victors will be the developers whose lives will not be ruined. Most of the houses are not for a entrenched housing estates but for private buyers, the sheer greed of councils and developers astounds me. The loss of green spaces a priority. Kent was the garden of England, now it's an overcrowded concrete jungle. WtH/ WtH/does everything here to be built in Whitstable, Herne Bay & Thanet.

The area is already overcrowded, but the powers that be cannot see the awful future that council housing programmes will bring in the future. I am not a nimbly but I fear for the future of this once green & pleasant place.

Please, please don't take the last beautiful site away.
