- > Another concern is the current drainage and sewage problems. The current system cannot cope and more homes would make a failing system even worse. It is not acceptable that sewage is regularly pumped into the sea and more houses and people would further increase this problem. Homes need to be build only after the drainage and sewage and reservoir systems have been upgraded and updated.
- > Other issues with so many more homes would be extra pressure on local nhs services which don't seem to have been considered.
